Excerpt: . . . by their teachers and rendered the national anthem. Many of them delivered recitations commemorating Old Glory; all business houses were closed for the purpose of attending the flagraising ceremony and the town assembled en masse. Many visitors from Kingman, the county eat, also came. And the assemblage listened to a number of addresses by visitors and citizens representative of vocations ranging from mining to banking. In the opening address, Earl James, secretary of the Miners Union, was roundly applauded while setting forth the position of the union in these terms: This union has since the war started been behind the administration in the prosecution of the war which has been forced upon our nation. The national labor movement has since the beginning realized that each organization as well as every individual is being measured, and properly so, by the expressions of its or his loyalty to the country; that a traitorous position taken by a national union, a local union, or a union man is to some extent a reflection upon the entire labor movement of America. We do not wish to eescape our mutual responsibility. And we wish to show unequivocally that the trade unions of America are safe for democracy. As an organization we realize that for the benefit of our wives and children autocracy E. White must disappear from the earth; that democracy must prevail, and that the trade unions of America must cheerfully bear their responsibility to that end. So...
